LITTLE BROWN HANDS.

They drive home the cows from the pasture,
Up through the long, slaty lane
Where the quail whistles loud in the wheat-fields.
That are yellow with ripening grain.
They find in the thick, waving grasses,
Where the scarlet-tipped strawberries grow,
They gather the earliest snow-drops,
And the first crimson buds of the rose.
They toss the new hay in the meadow;
They gather the elder bloom white;
They find where the dusky grapes purple
In the self-clipped October light.
They know where the apples hang ripest,
And are sweeter than lily vines.
They know where the fruit hangs the thickest
On the long, thorny blackberry vines.
They gather the delicate sea weeds,
And build tiny castles of sand;
They pick up the beautiful sea-shells—
Fairy barks that have drifted to land.
They wave from the tall, rocking tre-trees
Where the oriole's honey-sweet notes ring,
And at night time are folded in slumber
By a song that a lullaby sings.
Those who toll bravely are strongest;
The humble and poor become great,
And from these lowly-handed children
Shall grow mighty rulers of state.
The pen of the author and statesman,
The noble and wise of the land,
The loving and motherly woman,
Who'll wisely mold all with her hand.

MISCELLANY.

JUDAISM.

Reception of a Woman, Heared a Protestant, into the Jewish Church.

[From the New York Sun, May 24.]

The Synagogue Shaarei Berocho, in Sixth street, was open on Saturday afternoon, and nearly half the three hundred seats were filled. Behind an altar covered with a rich blue cloth, bordered with gold, was a desk at which the rabbi, with his back turned to the congregation, read or rather chanted the musical Hebrew scriptures. He was habited in a long, loose black gown and wore a mitre of a dark color; and as he stood thus he faced a heavy, many-headed child, richly embroidered with gold, that hung on the wall. Above him burned the light that the pious Hebrew keeps bright during twenty-four hours of the Sabbath.
On the platform by the side of the rabbi sat the President and the officers of the synagogue with light scarfs of black and white thrown about their shoulders. At the signal from the rabbi, after the first long chant, one of these men arose and drew aside the velvet curtain exposing to view some sliding doors that opened upon the holy shrine in which were stored the five books of Moses written in Hebrew upon rolls of parchment. Reverently was one of these rolls brought forward and partly opened, that the learned rabbi might read the day's lesson. Then was it as reverently returned to its place.
So far the services had been conducted entirely in Hebrew; but now the rabbi turned and spoke a few words in English, in response to which a young woman from the balcony, after the first long chant, one of these men arose and drew aside the velvet curtain exposing to view some sliding doors that opened upon the holy shrine in which were stored the five books of Moses written in Hebrew upon rolls of parchment. Reverently was one of these rolls brought forward and partly opened, that the learned rabbi might read the day's lesson. Then was it as reverently returned to its place.

THE JEWISH CATECHISM.

"My dear daughter," said he, as he gave to her the catechism, the creed, and the history of the Jews. "It may be hard for you to believe the teachings of our books. We do not seek to make converts, but we will gladly welcome you if you choose to come."
When she next visited the good rabbi she said: "Rabbi, I have read carefully and studied diligently, but I do not see that I need to be more than a Jewess. I am kind to the poor, honest to my husband, and true to God, in order to be a good Jewish woman. These things I am willing to strive for."
In all the rabbi's life-long experience she was the first Christian that had asked to be received by him into the church of the Jews, and she wished to come quietly, in faith, and without pomp.

As the beautiful young woman stood alone before the good rabbi on Saturday afternoon the picture was one to be remembered. The rabbi was attired in his long, dark gown, and the candidate before him wore a simple white dress. She is only nineteen years old, of medium size, with a strong, thoughtful and gentle face, and an abundance of light hair. She answered the questions put to her by the rabbi in a clear, ringing voice, without hesitation. The ceremony was brief, the forms as follows having been especially prepared for the occasion by Mr. Cohn, the celebrant:

Rabbi. My dear woman, what brought thee to-day to the house of God?
Woman. I came here today to become a member of the Jewish faith.
Rabbi. Whom dost thou seek?
Woman. I seek to enter into the holy communion of your ancestors.

Rabbi. Art thou acquainted with, and instructed in, those sacred principles and doctrines of the covenant which God has made with our forefathers?
Woman. I am, and will obey and execute them with all my heart and soul, even at the sacrifice of my life.

Rabbi. And now, dear woman, in conformity with those divine and sacred precepts, I call on thee to answer truthfully the following question: What is the first fundamental doctrine of the Messianic faith?
Woman. The first (fundamental) doctrine of the Messianic faith is: Shema Israel, Adonoi Elohenu, Adonoi Echow. Hear O Israel! The Lord our God. The Lord is one!

Rabbi. Dost thou understand this doctrine, and art thou convinced of its truth?
THE CANDIDATE'S VOICE.
Woman. I am, and I will profess it all the days of my life.

Rabbi. And now recite the ten commandments.
(The woman recited the ten commandments.)
Rabbi. Which are the commandments which a woman in Israel has to observe?
Woman. Nido, Chalo, Hailoko. The first signifying that she shall not transgress the laws of cleanliness, the second that she shall ever put by a part of her dote for the poor, and the third that she shall light the candles of the Sabbath on Friday night.

Rabbi. How many festivals in the year?
Woman. Three, the Passover, the Feast of the Weeks or Pentecost, and the Feast of the Tabernacles.

Rabbi. How many holidays besides these festivals?
Woman. Two: New Year's and the Day of Atonement.

The rabbi then turned, drew aside the velvet curtain, opened the doors of the shrine, and exhibiting the scrolls of parchment to the candidate, made this proclamation:

"And now my dear woman, since thou hast willingly and freely accepted the various precepts and truths of Judaism, I announce in the name of the Lord that thou art fully confirmed in the divine covenant, and have entered the sacred fold. Mayest thou feel the great importance of this hour. Bend before this sacred shrine that I may impart to thee the blessing which God has given into the hands of His servants, and may the Lord grant that it shall follow thee in thy journey in life. (The candidate here knelt before the rabbi's desk.) The Lord let shine His countenance upon thee, and be gracious unto thee! The Lord lift up His face upon thee and give thee peace! Amen."

Woman. God and Father, from the depth of my heart I offer thanks for the blissful hour I have enjoyed in Thy house to-day. May Thy holy faith be impressed upon my soul. It shall be a lamp to my steps and a light to my path. Under Thy guidance, O Lord, I enter the future; in Thee I trust and I fear not. And now I close this solemn hour with Thy blessing. Grant that it may guard me from evil and temptation! May these words of my mouth be acceptable in Thy glorious presence! Amen.

The rabbi then formally received the candidate into his flock with a cordial grasp of his hand, which action of his was imitated by Isaac Netter, the President, and by the other dignitaries of the synagogue. As she returned to her seat in her husband's pew, the women welcomed her with kisses.
Yesterday she was quietly married to her husband under the rites of her new religion.

A NOBLE WOMAN.

Disinterestedness seems to be inherent in the good and virtuous part of the female sex, and not unfrequently it is exhibited among those unfortunates who, sunk by the misdeeds of their fathers, find the wreck of every noble and virtuous sentiment, some vestige of that lovely quality which allies woman, when in her purity, to angels.

Twenty years ago, Seth Barry was one of the most dashing men in Rochester. Nobody sported a more elegant equipage, or lost his money (fighting the tiger) with more confidence than he. Men said he was a "brick," women pronounced him a charming fellow, only a little too gay; and both men and women thought he wanted nothing to make him perfect but fifty thousand a year additional.

It was, he managed to spend the interest of nearly a half million dollars without an apparent exertion. None of Seth's male friends were over short of funds when he was about, while any lady who was a friend of his was a diamond in a jeweler's show case, to be sure of receiving it as a present the next day. Is it any marvel that such a blessing to the current blood of the city?

As years went on, Seth began to contract more expensive habits, and to fight the tiger with more pertinacity, and finding that he could not live upon the interest of his money, he began to look for a principled. He never intended to go very deep into it; but after he had made the first attempt the thing became familiar to him, and he dashed onward in ruinous career, until one day found that his fortune was nearly exhausted. After the first shock was over he didn't trouble himself much about the discovery he had made. A strange calmness took possession of his mind, and he actually smiled over his impending ruin.

When things were in this condition, a relative of Seth became possessed of the secret, and, having more prudence than the spendthrift, proposed to him to mend his ways. He was a man of letters, and he was a lady who was wealthy, and who regarded Seth with favorable eyes. As a general rule, bachelors of forty-five rarely think of matrimony, but when they are well pleased with their family, but there are, of course, exceptions to this rule. The lady in question was not pretty, but she was rich in virtues as she was in the gifts of fortune.

Seth Barry was reckoned a handsome man; he knew he was good-looking, for his mirror had often told him so. "This, a few gray streaks were visible in his dark hair, but it gave him a more distinguished character than otherwise would have been the case. He listened with great deal of complacency to his relative's advice, and concluded to follow it.

He lost no time in calling upon Mrs. Cordelia Swift, a young widow, who received him with great favor, and frankness. From that time Seth laid siege to her heart, and shortly proposed to her and was accepted.

When the fact became known to the public, there was a howl among his poor male friends, and a wail on the lips of those women who had not received diamonds. But there was no help for them. All the present now went to Mrs. Cordelia Swift, and the men might grow, and the women storm and sneer, yet Seth Barry was going to enter the pale of matrimony, and matters must take a new turn.

Mrs. Swift had been a widow only twelve months. It was therefore agreed to defer the nuptials until another year had passed away. Seth, who abounded in good nature, coincided with her views; only too happy to be able to go on in his old course a little longer. He said his turn, saying he had become tired of it, and, as Mrs. Swift had horses and carriages, it would be useless for him to retain his own. Seth never drove anything but the shape of horse flesh but blooded stock, and he realized a good sum from the sale of his animals and vehicles. He did not wholly give up his gay life, but he abated a good many of his wild ways. He fought the tiger less frequently, and with more caution. He had seen the animal's teeth in days of yore too often to know that it was dangerous to trifle with him. His luck, however, began to be a little better than it formerly had been. Perhaps the wary animal sensed Seth's secret, and wished to lure him on. If such was the case, Seth never permitted the temptation to his wild ways. Another severe thunder shower on Tuesday morning.

Enough, enough, thunder, lightning and rain for the present.

II. J. Peck of Shakopee was in town on Tuesday.

During the storm of Tuesday morning

a small building, near Gregg & Griswold's brick yard, and formerly used as a dwelling, was struck by lightning and nearly demolished.

Folsom is building a boat on which he will put an artist's gallery, and visit all the towns between here and New Orleans.

He proposes to obtain views of all the fine

It will no doubt be a pleasant and profitable trip.

Frank Warner of Carver, was in town on Monday.

Fishing parties are still the rage and the Herald's devotees, went out Monday evening, returning Tuesday morning with 43 pickers and bass. The storm of Tuesday morning had no terrors for them.

Corpus Christi was celebrated here on Sunday by the Catholic Church in due form. After services at the church a large procession was formed which marched through the streets, the route being indictated by small trees which had been planted the night before, and the dwellings were decorated along the route. The cere-

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

The names of the Mortgages are Harriet M.

Kates and James C. Kates is written in the minutes of the Mortgagee in James Brown of Scott County, Minnesota.

The date of the Mortgage is the 29th day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty four.

Said Mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Carver at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of the eighth day of December A. D. 1864 in book "C" of Mortgages on page 141 and 142.

The description of the Mortgaged premises is all that tract or parcel of land situate lying and being in the county of Carver, Minnesota described as follows to-wit: Lots two and three in section two, Township one hundred and fifty north of Range twenty three west containing 117-50-100 acres of land, in and by which mortgage the said mortgagors waived all benefits of the redemption laws of the State of Minnesota except one year.

Said Mortgage was made to secure the payment of the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars payable in three years after date of said mortgage with interest at twelve per cent per annum together with the sum of ten dollars annual fee to be retained from the purchase money in case of a sale of said mortgaged premises under the power of sale contained in said mortgage.

No action or proceedings at law or otherwise to enforce the payment of the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

The amount claimed to be due and remaining due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of sixty five dollars and eighteen cents together with the said sum of ten dollars to be retained from the purchase money as provided for in the mortgage.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that in virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and recorded therein and of the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged premises hereinafter described to be made by the sheriff of the County of Carver, Minnesota, at two o'clock in the afternoon of the sixteenth day of July A. D. 1875 and the proceeds of such sale

Gov. Davis.

The letter of Gov. Davis to the Republican central committee which convened at Minneapolis on the 9th inst., settles the question of his candidacy for a reelection. Many comments are made upon what seems to be the surrender of the Governor. We do not regard it as a surrender. We do not believe that he declined to be a candidate for re-nomination, because he had any doubts of his re-nomination or reelection should he seek the position, although it might not have been in his power to have secured either. He was nominated and elected as the opponent of what was regarded as the Republican ring of Minnesota, and as such opponent he was put forward as a candidate for U. S. Senator last winter. He succeeded in defeating the ring but not in securing a seat in the U. S. Senate. His purpose for the present seems to have been accomplished. If he should be re-elected it could not possibly result in any advantage to him, as he has by a faithful performance of his duties secured all the honor that attaches to the position of Governor; and it is not surprising that a lawyer of his ability and large practice, after a full view of the "Political Elephant" should have declined to occupy in his position.

Pierso C. Cheney has been elected Governor of New Hampshire by the Legislature of that state.

Aspecial telegram from the Courier-Journal letter from Pittsburg, D. T., May 31st, says the Quakana tribe of the white moccasins are expected to Fort Sill to-day, to surrender, they agreeing to turn over to the military authorities all their arms, horses and mules. The horses number about 4,000 head, and they have 200 head of mules. The band has been raiding on Texas for the past five years and the authorities have always failed to induce them to turn over to the military authorities. They have been anxiously looked for almost every year by the Fourth U. S. cavalry, in the Staked Plains, under command of Gen. McKenzie, but seldom were they or any portion of them found. There will be no small band of Apaches are now out and it is rumored they will follow the example of their Quakana friends, which would leave the southern Staked Plains free from hostile Indians.

The miners strike seems to be nearly, if not quite, ended.

Late advices state that the members of the delegation of Cheyenne River Sioux who have been in Washington, consulting with the government authorities in regard to a sale of their reservation, arrived in this city yesterday, and were taken to the Grand Central Hotel. Mr. Fiedler, their interpreter, says the party from the Black Hills has never before been within the limits of civilization and it is the desire of the government to show them as much of the country as possible before their return. The visit to New York will therefore be devoted entirely to sight-seeing, which was begun last evening when a number of them, in company of Mr. Fiedler and Buffalo Bill, visited Gilmore's Garden or the Transformed Hippodrome, the latest city sensation. "White Swan" were at his belt, during the day, a long string of snakes taken in his various excursions.

It is stated that on the petition of Hugh J. Jewett, receiver of the Erie railroad company, Judge Donahue has granted an order empowering the receiver to pay taxes and charges thereon, and to perform all other legal duties, and to sell the securities referred to therein wherein his judgment to the interest of all parties will be promoted thereby.

It is reported that the millers of St. Louis have joined in a petition to the president and directors of the Merchants' Exchange to have wheat strikers from the list of arrested gold sold at the call board on 'change. They assert that this kind of speculation produces illegitimate fluctuations, which are ruinous to the manufacturers of flour, and will ultimately destroy the wheat and the tendencies of such speculation are demoralizing and disreputable, &c.

In the United States District Court at Galveston, Tex., in the case against the proprietors of the Galveston News, the attorney for the government presented a motion to quash the indictment for the following grounds: First, the court has no jurisdiction in such a matter of contempt and such a procedure on the part of the court was contrary to all law and practice of the United States.

Second, That while the proprietors of the News claimed the right and privilege to discuss all questions before the court in which the public were interested, yet in the article referred to, the proprietors had no discretion, and intended to the court, as intimated in the order of arrest, nor was any attempt made to influence the case then pending in the court, or to bring it into disrepute. During the proceedings, Judge Ballenger, counsel for the proprietors, had expressed his desire to see the proprietors of the News, and Judge Miller decided not to hear them, stating that he would take the papers under advisement until to-morrow morning. The question in his mind first to be settled was, if the answer was sufficient to show cause why an attachment for contempt should not be issued. If it was, further proceedings would be unnecessary.

Another Atlantic cable has been completed. Negotiations with the Indians for the possession of the Black Hills will be resumed in case gold is found there.

By a recent decision of the Supreme Court, the United States vs. Beaulieu Societies have been declared subject to taxation. In obedience to this decision the board of equalization of this city has sent citations to each society in the limit of Cincinnati, to show cause why they should not be taxed on their property, credits, etc. The Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Red Men, and all other secret societies, heretofore exempted on the ground of charity and their seeming public benefit, have been included in the assessments.

The United States vs. Beaulieu Societies, June 9th, in the case of the Erie railroad company, plaintiff in error, vs. the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in error, to the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the following points were argued: The question in this case is that of the right and intention of the State of Pennsylvania to impose a tax on the gross receipts of the Erie Railroad Company. In May, 1868, the Legislature of that State passed an act, by the 8th section of which there was imposed a tax of three-fourths of one per cent upon the gross receipts of every railway company and canal and transportation company, taxable under the provisions of the act. Under this section the accounting officers of the State settled an account against the Erie Railroad Company. From this settlement an appeal was taken by the company to a county court, where a verdict of $7,673,820 was rendered in favor of the State, which was appealed to the Supreme Court of the State, was sustained.

From this judgment of the Supreme Court of the State, a writ of error is sought to be granted to the Erie Railroad Company. The court finds that the decision of the State courts of Pennsylvania are quite in harmony with our own on this subject. The respondent's objections are well taken, and the judgment must be affirmed.

Mr. Beach commenced his argument for the Erie Railroad Company, on the 8th, and spent the first two days in defending his case from the arguments of Evans and Porter. The arguments of Mr. H. B. Claflin, for the State, were heard on the 10th, and Mr. Beach, immediately after the return of the Custer expedition, escorted by two companies of cavalry, spent many days in the Black Hills, doing service for the United States army. Our command was broken up into small parties for purposes of exploration, each taking such route as they saw fit to its leader, and we made a thorough examination of the Hills. The rock, aside from the sandstone, first found, is hard and rough granite and pebbles. We found no seams of gold in the hills, but we found gold in the sandstone. The gold is found in the sandstone, and we found no signs of gold in the hills.

The Supreme Court of New Hampshire, on the question of the eligibility of Messrs. Priest and Proctor to seats in the Senate submitted a decision to the effect that an act of the legislature, passed in 1873, required of the executive department by the Constitution and fundamental law—holding that such an opinion could have no greater weight than criticism of one branch of the government upon the action of a co-ordinate branch. The court was therefore of opinion that when the Senate adjudged Priest and Proctor duly elected Senators their action was final and conclusive as to their right. The opinion was based on the assumption that at the time of the action of the Senate a constitutional question was presented. The opinion is signed by Chief Justice Cushing and Associate Justices Land and Smith.

Parson C. Cheney has been elected Governor of New Hampshire, by the legislature. Jeff Davis has accepted a college presidency at a salary of $4,000.

The Lord in heaven confound them, rain his fire and brimstone round them,—
The robbing, murdering red-coats, that would burn a peaceful town!

They are marching, stern and solemn; we can see each massive column
As they near the naked earth-mound with the shouting walls so steep.

Now! the walls they're almost under! scarce a roll the foe's answer!
Not a firelock flashed against them! up the earthwork they will swarm!

But the words have scarce been spoken, when the ominous calm is broken,
And a howling gale has emptied all the vengeance of the storm!

So again, with murderous slaughter, pelted backwords to the water, Fly Pigot's running horses and the frightened leaves of How!

And we shout, "At last they're done for, it's their largest they have run for!"
They are beaten, beaten, beaten; and the battle's over now!

And we looked, poor timid creatures, on the rough old soldier's features,
As they aimed at question, but he knew what we would ask:

"Not sure," he said, "keep quiet,—once more, I guess, they'll be it!"
Here's a handkerchief to the cut-throats!—then he handed me his flask.

Saying, "Gee, you're looking shaky; have a drop of old Jamaica!"
I'm afraid there'll be more trouble afore the job is done."

So I took a scorching swallow; dreadful faint I felt and hollow, Standing there from early morning when the firing was begun.

All through those hours of trial I had watched a calm clock dial,
As they crept, creeping, creeping, they were creeping round to four.

When the old man said, "they're forming for the charge, the bayonets are forming!"
It's the death-grasp that's coming,—they will try the works once more."

With brazen trumpets blaring, the flames leapt high and clear,
The deadly wall before them, in close array they came.

Still on they came, like a dragon's foot, the rattling muskets
Like the rattling muskets shall warning the reverberating drum.

Over the wall they came, and I tell the fearful story
How they surged above the breastworks, as a sea breaks over a rock.

How driven, yet scarce defeated, our worn-out men retreated,
With their powder-horns all emptied, like the swiftest wind from a wreck!

It has all been told and painted; as for me, I have been faint,
And the wooden-legged old Corporal stumped with me down the shore.

And when I woke from dreams of the evening lamps were lighter,
On the floor a youth was lying; his bleeding breast was bare.

And I heard through all the flurry, "Send for Warren! hurry! hurry!"
Tell him here's a soldier bleeding, and he'll come and dress his wound."

Alas! we knew not till the morrow told its tale of death and sorrow,
How the sunlight found him stiffened on the dark and bloody ground.

Who the youth was, what his name was, where the place in which he came was,
Who had brought him on the battle, and had led him to his death.

He could not speak to tell us; but 'twas one of our brave fellows,
As the hapless man plainly showed us which the dying soldier wore.

For they all thought he was dying, as they gathered round him crying,
And they said, "Oh, how they miss him!"

Then, his eyes closed, his mother's face he saw,
Then, his eyes closed, his mother's face he saw.

He was a brave fellow, and a noble one,
He was a brave fellow, and a noble one.

And we sometimes walked together in the pleasant summer weather,
"Please to tell us what his name was!"

But he would not tell us; he would not tell us,
There's his picture, Captain; painted; we became so well acquainted.

That—his mother, that's why I'm grandma, and you children all are here!

not last long, and in still air the heat was so not uncomfortable as you would think it. I was very much disappointed in the scenery which I thought would be so rich and beautiful. I saw nothing but an immense plain, covered with dry grass and leafless trees, while here and there a tree still kept its foliage. The ground was baked hard and dry, and to judge from the streams had not seen rain for a long time, but the great redeeming feature is the cool nights. It is noon now and I am improving the time by writing this letter in my room with the thermometer at 90 degrees, while the others are trying to keep cool in the large room (which is dining-room, parlor, office and all in one immense room) by keeping wet moccasins hanging all around and vigorously working the large fans called punkas, and after all it is hot work.

As to going out, for the ground is so hot that it is as bad as a power, and even with an umbrella and a hat it is almost impossible for a stranger to attempt it. This place is situated at the junction of the Ganges and Jumna, both holy rivers, and so is considered especially sacred to the Hindus.

When the Mohammedans captured it from the original holders, they were so pleased with its beauty that they gave it its present name, Allahabad, meaning "City of God." Immense numbers of pilgrims here bathe in the Ganges, and perform other ceremonies; one of the most curious of which is the shaving of the head and beard; they believe that for every bad deed thus disposed of on the banks of a million years in Paradise. It was not the season for the pilgrimage so I missed an interesting sight, the only one that I know of in the city.

DEPART, April 6th.

I left Allahabad April 24, and reached Agra at noon the next day. This town, also, is on the Jumna, which is here but about one-third of its size. Allahabad is a sort of a city, and is a very fine one, especially in a matter of very great importance. Third, it costs nothing, except for the mechanism by which it is applied.

The New Motive Power—"Cold Steam."

Of late there have been frequent mentions of a new motive power, said to have been discovered in Philadelphia, which is the most intelligent statement that has appeared of the nature of the discovery.

The inventor, a Mr. Keely, claims to have discovered a mechanical process by which water can be converted from an elastic into an elastic fluid without the aid of either fire or chemicals; and this fluid, which, for want of a better name, is called cold steam, exerts a force greater than that of steam.

Mr. Keely first made his discovery some years ago while experimenting upon a power saving water wheel. To test the power that he had thus accidentally obtained, Mr. Keely made a cylinder of steel bands, making a cylinder of very great strength. The power was then applied, and the cylinder was torn in pieces instantly. Next a three-horse power engine was built, and afterward one of fifteen horse power. It is asserted that these engines have been run every day for a year in the city of Philadelphia, without the use of fire, chemicals, and at a cost of not more than one cent. It is further asserted that scientific experts who have seen the power tested pronounce it practical, and say that it accomplishes all that Mr. Keely claims for it.

If all this is true, it is hardly possible to exaggerate the importance of the discovery. Among the advantages possessed by the new motor are these: First, it is non-explosive. Second, it is clean. Third, it is simple. Fourth, it is cheap. Fifth, it is a matter of very great importance. Third, it costs nothing, except for the mechanism by which it is applied.

Fourth, it saves space as well as expense, and is a very fine one, especially in a matter of very great importance. Third, it costs nothing, except for the mechanism by which it is applied.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

LIME WATER FOR BURNS.

A correspondent of the New York Sun writes to that journal that the readiest and most useful remedy for scalds and burns is an emulsion of lime water and linseed oil. These simple agents combined form a thick, cream-like substance, which effectually excludes the air from the injured parts, and allays the inflammation almost instantly. He mentions a case where a child fell back into a bath-tub of boiling water, and was nearly suffocated by the steam. The child was held from her neck to below her hips. Her agonies were indescribable, but her clothing being gently removed, and the lime and oil preparation thickly spread over the injured surface, she was soon asleep in five minutes. Subsequently the parts were carefully washed with warm milk and water three times a day, the oil dressing renewed, and the little patient rapidly recovered. Though all the scalded skin came off, she did not have a scar. This remedy leaves no mark, and it is very easy to apply. The parts and aids nature to repair the injury in the readiest and most expeditious manner. The mixture may be procured at the drug stores, but if not thus accessible, slake a lump of quicklime in water, and as soon as the water is clear, mix it with the oil and shake it well.

Soda Fountain.

At the Drug Store, Frank, has put up one of the finest soda fountains in the state. It will pay to call and look at it for it is a beauty. Should you take a glass of the delicious drink that Frank draws from it, you would be sure to call again.

Burglary at Glenwood.

The safe of A. H. Reed & Co., at Glenwood, was opened on Thursday night of last week, and about $100 in currency abstracted. It was done by some one who knew the combination of the lock,

and audacious robs upon a former employee who had been discharged a short time since.

It certainly was done by some one well acquainted with the safe and promises for the person effected his entrance to the store and safe and retired without disturbing the man who slept in the store about two feet from the safe. Any person having these combination lock safer should be careful that no one else knows the combination, especially if they are in the habit of keeping large amounts of money in them; for these hard times have a wonderful tendency to make rogues of naturally honest men.
